Special Easter Services To Be Given By Local Churches

Easter Sunday will be observed in Carmel with quiet but distinctive services at virtually all of the village's churches.

At the Community Church, special services have been arranged under the direction of the Rev. T. Harold Grimshaw. The church school will start at 9:45 o'clock, and the Easter Festival service will begin at 11 o'clock. During the musical program there will be a solo by V. M. Bain and a violin-cello solo by M. Brooks. The Rev. Mr. Grimshaw will preach the sermon: "Christ and the Sunrise."

The evening services will feature a children's pageant.

At All Saints Episcopal church, the Easter services will begin with Holy Communion at 8 o'clock in the morning and the church school and children's Easter festival at 9:45 o'clock.

The Easter Festival service with sermon and Holy Communion will start at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Austin B. Chinn will preach the sermon: "Be Not Faithless But Believing."

This Sunday's services at All Saints will mark the use for the first time of the newly installed organ. A large choir, especially trained for the past six weeks by Edward C. Hopkins, will augment the musical program. Ann Laura Van Wyck Chinn will play the organ.

Carmel Wakes Up From Winter Slumber To Greet New Comers

Carmel woke up this week from its annual winter slumber of seclusion and quietness to find hundreds of new faces in its midst.

With the first of the summer vacations now underway, an overflow of out-of-town residents have entered the village—many of them planning to remain here possibly until fall.

Real estate agents report a heavier rental of cottages than last year while local hotels and restaurants have also shared in much larger patronage than they had at first anticipated.

The heavy tourist trade early in the summer points, according to many old timers, to an increased population within the next few months. It is not until late in May or around the first part of June when the schools are closed, that influx of visitors head for Carmel.

One of the quickest barometers that indicate the approach of summer is the traffic congestion on Dolores street and Ocean avenue. When the summer is at its height, parking on Dolores street is one of the impossible things that is left to the new comers to attempt.

When old Carmel stretches its legs and gives a final yawn before rising from its peaceful winter bed, the village takes on an unusual transformation. Not only are there new faces and bright colors in attire, but the beach once more becomes spotted with crowds. Summer is in full swing.

Harry Leon Wilson Takes Stand Again In Damage Action

Once again, Harry Leon Wilson, noted author, had to mount the stand in the superior court at Salinas this week and describe the fire which last year swept his home in the Highlands.

Wilson, one of the country's leading fiction writers is suing Myer Rosenberg, road contractor, for $9,400. A jury, demanded by Rosenberg, is hearing the evidence in the case.

Wilson charges that through carelessness and recklessness on the part of a road crew working under Rosenberg, a fire raced out of control on the Highlands and destroyed 50 full grown Monterey pines, two gnarled and picturesque ghost cypress trees and innumerable flowers, shrubs and other plants.

Pine trees, which framed the Pacific from his studio window where he has authored books and scenarios for 20 years, were blackened by the blaze. He failed to mention in his complaint what value he placed on loss of inspiration thereby, but that is expected to be brought out in the trial.

The fire also destroyed a hand-hewn bridge on his property.

The charges of carelessness have been denied by the defendant.

Shivers! Thieves Steal Skull From Real Estate Office

Employees of the Carmel Land company were today scratching their heads and attempting to find out who stole the skull that decorated the entrance to their offices on Ocean avenue.

The skull, said to have come from a famous bull has for years provided considerable atmosphere for the real estate office and has been admired by many visitors. It is believed that this admiration was directly the cause of the theft.

Disappearance of the skull was not discovered until early this week when residents who are accustomed to glance sheepishly at it, found it had vanished from its usual location.

The skull is valuable not only as a relic but for the fact that it was a gift to officials of the company. Local authorities have been asked to search for it and this

Venus De Milo To Make Court Appearance Tomorrow Morning

Blind-folded Dame Justice and Carmel's arty Venus De Milo will have their day in court tomorrow morning.

Eight Carmel youngsters, all sons of prominent local families, will be brought up before Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen to face charges of malicious mischief in connection with abduction of the statue.

Charges against the youths were sworn out by Fred Wermuth, owner of the statue. It is understood that if the youths are found guilty of the charge, Wermuth will file a damage suit against the parents for alleged injury sustained by dainty Venus.

The statue mysteriously disappeared one night from the front yard of Wermuth's San Carlos street home, where for sometime it had garnished the entrance with all its feminine beauty.

It was not until morning that the statue was found, directing traffic at the intersection of Ocean avenue and San Antonio street. First a group of four youngsters were rounded up by police and four more later on also confessed to the infamous deed.

According to Wermuth, the statue in the hands of the youngsters, sustained injury which he estimated to be over $500.

Can Carmel's Elite Hold Their Liquor? Tests May Expose Them

America's new health drink, 3.2 per cent beer, might not be intoxicating in the eyes of the law, but it is so far as Mayor John Catlin is concerned.

In fact, Mayor Catlin, is willing to carry out an experiment if other members of the council approve it, to test the intoxicating strength of the new beverage.

Under terms of the experiment, Mayor Catlin would appoint six prominent residents of the village, possibly artists and writers (well known for their capacity) to try out the beer. Each would be given six bottles to partake within the limited space of an hour.

If at the end of the hour, the participants of the experiment can tell their correct names, walk on a straight line and refrain from singing in a high tenor voice Sweet A-d-e-l-i-n-e, Mayor Catlin is willing to be convinced that 3.2 per cent beer is non-intoxicant.

Any chemist can tell you that one bottle of 3.2 per cent beer contains the equivalent of a small glass of strong whiskey," Mayor Catlin points out. "Now six drinks of whiskey—and I know what I'm talking about—has an effect that can't be compared with soda pop."

Both Councilmen Herbert Heron and Robert Norton would be in favor of the experiment—the sentiment of the other members of

Whipping Post Favored For Woman's Husband

If a whipping post was still in existence the former husband of a Carmel woman might have faced such punishment for failure to take care of his two children.

Brought up this week before Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen, Carl A. Lundquist found himself without any explanation for not providing for the two children now in the care of their mother in Carmel.

From the bench, Judge Jorgensen said that if the whipping post was ever justified it was in this case. He pointed out that the first duty of every man was to provide for his children until they were able to take care of themselves. Mrs. Lundquist, sitting in the court, heard the jurist's denunciation of her divorced husband without comment.

Lundquist, it was revealed in court, was more than $2000 in arrears in alimony while his former wife and children were in dire straits. Lundquist is said to have married again.

Federal documentary stamps of the value of one cent to ten dollars are now on sale at the Carmel Postoffice. These stamps are used mainly for real estate, bond and stock transactions. Postmaster W. L. Overstreet placed the stamps on sale last Monday.

week Police Chief Gus Englund was looking in attics and under beds for the missing skull.

Giants Defeated By Growling Tigers In Exciting Ball Game

By Winsor Josselyn

Up rose the tattered Tiger team at the Woods diamond and socked the Giants for a 17 to 11 win. This is the second game they've won, and when you starve a Tiger that way not even a Giant is safe. Figures show that Tigers Sheridan and Reamer reached base four times in four times up, and between them got five runs; player Thienes, not to be outdone, grabbed two runs personally. The Giant rally was all over after the second inning, despite Tremayne and Stowell getting on base every time up. Five runs in the first, then five in the second and they were washed up for the day.

Before the standings of the teams can be lopped off the end of this article (as my editor sharpens shears to do) let me give you the present ratings:

Club Section

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Pilots	6	1	.857
Giants	4	3	.571
Shamrocks	3	5	.375
Tigers	2	6	.250

Community Section

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Del Monte	4	2	.667
Country Club	4	2	.667
Manzanita Club	3	4	.429
Polo Club	2	5	.286

(Old M'ty)

The second game of the Point day was supposed to be the Del Monte-Polo Club affair, but it seems that beyond Mr. Phelps there were no other players present. Mr. Phelps offered to take on the Del Monte team single-handed, but umpires Sheridan and Staniford refused to let him do this and declared it no-game. A choose-up practice game followed, and Gordie Campbell uncorked some noble hitting. "And only a practice game!" lamented the young athlete when interviewed later.

Up in Carmel Woods the Shamrocks dropped a game to the Pilots, score 3 to 6. Geyer and Tobiason of the losers hit well, and this put ambition into Pilots Parker Files, who got on every time up; Parker converted every time into a run, and that's good coffee.

First game at the Point was won by Country Club over Manzanita, 16 to 11. Clubman Captain Godwin got three runs in four times on base, and teammate Warren got two. Messrs Finley and troupe also did the team no harm. So the Club started off with 7 runs in the first inning, coasting until 6 were had in the sixth. Heartbreaking, that attack.

Manzanita threw Catlett and his bat back at them and Dick got on five times in five times up, annexing 2 runs, while Aucourt, Benadom and Brewer followed as best they could, which was noble. But you can't beat runs for winning a ball game and that was that.

There will be several more Sundays of playing. Next Sunday we will see at The Woods: Polo Club vs. Country Club, then Tigers vs. Pilots. At the Point:

Shamrocks vs. Giants, followed by Manzanita vs. Del Monte.

Come and watch the boys and girls gallop in the wildflowers.

Plans Being Rushed For Art Ball To Be Given At Del Monte

With the Quatz Arts Ball at Hotel Del Monte scheduled to be held in two weeks, final plans were today being rushed to completion for the elaborate affair that is expected to attract hundreds of guests.

The committee of celebrities in charge of the event, report that many additional skits and dance numbers have been prepared than originally anticipated. This will mean, they point out, that every minute from ten o'clock at night until the early hours of the morning, will be filled with varied, snappy entertainment.

It is understood that those taking in the affair, will not be allowed to enter unless they are appropriately costumed for the event. Prizes are scheduled to be given for various types of costumes with an imposing committee acting as judges.

While out-of-town entertainment will also be provided, Carmel will furnish considerable talent. Ruth Austin and her group of dancers will appear in several numbers especially prepared for the ball. Galt Bell will stage a skit written by a well known author and Elsa Naess will also take part in a dance number. Lew Cody, moving picture star, is scheduled to act as master of ceremonies.

Laundry Sanitation

Read what Roger Babson says about steam laundries:

"Laundry-owners manufacture cleanliness, sanitation, health, youth, long life, good looks, a year of leisure out of every seven, and happiness for mothers, fathers and children.

"Up until a few years ago, the kitchen with its red-hot cook stove, hands red from dishwashing, back aching from floor scrubbing, washing clothes, sweeping, beating rugs and all the rest of it, was a fact.

"The mother of tomorrow is going to live longer and more happily, and if there is any hot 'red-handed' back-breaking job in the kitchen, or its annex—the basement laundry—that ought to be taken away from there, it is the family wash."

ROGER BABSON, Babson Institute

Mr. Babson is one of the foremost business economists of the country, and his opinions are quoted by leading publications everywhere.

Sinclair Lewis Talks As He Walks Over Carmel's Main St.

By Herbert Cerwin

Sinclair Lewis paced leisurely this week over Carmel's Main street, flipped the ashes of his imported cigarette on the sidewalk and recalled that 25 years ago he had taken many similar walks in the village.

Only then, he rolled his own; the sidewalks were not paved and no one had heard of Sinclair Lewis except a certain saloon keeper in Monterey to whom he owed some money. He had sold a joke to a humorous magazine—that was as far as his literary efforts had reached although his flimsy suitcase ready to fall to pieces, was stuffed with unpublished fiction stories.

Lewis had drifted into Carmel with William Rose Benet and had taken a shack on Monte Verde where they lodged for six months.

Here on a few dollars a week they existed, Lewis writing all the time but selling not a single line.

The famous creator of Babbitt and Elmer Gantry, learned to cook eggs without burning them and to open a can without cutting his fingers. He washed his own clothes and on occasions when too much sand got into the bed, Benet and "Red" took turns in changing the sheets.

"I was all set to become a poet in those days," Lewis pointed out. "True enough, I wrote fiction, but I was more interested in poetry. If it wasn't for the fact that I had to eat, I'd still be a poet."

When Lewis and Benet left Carmel after a six months stay, the population of the village dwindled down from 50 residents to 48. Benet went east and Red went to San Francisco where he obtained a job on the San Francisco Bulletin and was promptly fired for being inefficient and a poor writer. A short while on the Associated Press and he was again fired.

He wrote his first novel several years afterwards and although no one read it, except for a few reviewers who received free copies, it encouraged Lewis to continue writing. Then he sold a story to the Saturday Evening Post which by virtue of its Campbell soup and Rip Van Winkle mattress advertisements paid him $500. When Red wrote "Main Street" he was on easy street; the book placed him on the top of the literary ladder.

What does the Nobel prize winner think of the new Carmel?

"Somehow, strangely enough, Carmel has survived and retained much of the atmosphere that made it famous in the days when I first lived here," Lewis observed. "Every few years I return, each time expecting to see a Rotary sign welcoming me at the entrance, and a Chamber of Commerce building on top of the hill. "For God's sakes, don't let the Babbitts ruin the town. You've got every other city in the country beat."

To stenographers, telephone operators and telegraph messenger boys who keep lights on until midnight exercising their fiction ability on the typewriter, Lewis gives one limited sentence of advice: "Write like hell—every spare moment you have."

Then as an afterthought: "You know, writing is hard work combined with lots of luck. Those that have the luck get the breaks."

With that as a parting shot, he walked into a local soft drink parlor where sitting on a tall stool, he ordered a Bromo-Seltzer.

He held the glass in his hand and with a merry chuckle, "Ah, the old standby!" he said and gulped the contents down.

And so do famous authors keep their heads clear.

Badminton Champions Decided at Tourney

Championships in five events will be decided in the state Badminton tournament to be held at Monterey, Saturday and Sunday next April 15 and 16. The competitions scheduled are: Men's Singles, Men's Doubles, Ladies' Singles, Ladies' Doubles, and Mixed ed Doubles. Entries are to be made with C. L. Frost, Monterey, California.

Heading the list of box-holders are Mrs. Sydney Fish, Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Phela, Captain Henry Forrester. Twelve of the twenty boxes already have been bid in and indications are that the championships will be the background of a smart Easter show in the Old Capitol.

Frederick Vincent of San Francisco has been named as official referee. He is a member of the St. Francis Badminton club and has been actively interested in other sports, serving with the California State Golf association.

All-Year Club Speaker To Give Address Here

Charles A. Harrworth, field secretary of the All-Year club of Southern California, will address the citizens of Carmel at an open meeting Monday afternoon, April 24, in the Golden Bough theatre, at 4 p. m. His topic will be "How the Nation Builds California."

Noted as one of the most brilliant speakers in California, Harrworth will tell a new and interesting story of tourist travel and its importance to this particular portion of the state.

NEWS BRIEFS

Paul Gray, son of Dr. John R. Gray of Carmel, and Miss Ethel Sinko of San Francisco were married at Del Monte chapel last week Wednesday morning, the Rev. Ernest Bradley officiating. After their honeymoon, they will reside in Oakland.

The will of the late Wilson Mizner leaves his estate of undetermined value to his friend, Florence Atkinson of Los Angeles. Mizner, author and dramatist, owned property in the Carmel valley.

Mexico will be represented by consular agent at Monterey for the first time in more than a hundred years. Consul Enrique Bravo is moving his headquarters from Fresno to Monterey.

Warning has been given peninsula merchants to look out for a bad check passer who has been working in this section recently. He is described as being 23 years old, 5 feet 11 inches high, weighs 150 pounds, with black, curly hair, brown eyes, an olive complexion, and a scar over the left eye.

Any unemployed men who have served in the armies of the United States in the world war are requested to report to Donald Hale if desirous of work. The American Legion peninsula commander, Joseph D. Thorn, Jr., issues the call which applies to others besides members of the legion.

Final Rites Held For Miss Minnie Pierce

The Rev. T. Harold Grimshaw of the Carmel Community church and the Rev. Austin B. Chinn of All Saints, officiated at services held Wednesday last week for Mrs. Minnie L. Pierce of Carmel who died Sunday at her home on Lincoln street.

Death came after a lingering illness. She was visiting her sisters, Miss Harriet Pierce and Miss Helen Pierce at the time of her death. Another sister is Mrs. W. E. Peck of New York.

Ritschel's Sea Paintings Are A One-Man Show in City

BY HOWARD TALBOT
in San Francisco Wasp-Newsletter

All the sea's mystery and varying moods are expressed in the twenty-six canvases by William Ritschel, veteran marine painter of Carmel Highlands, whose one-man shows of oils at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor now occupies the gallery in which Whistler's famed portrait of his mother was recently displayed. The exhibition is partly retrospective and partly contemporary, and includes paintings executed in other parts of the world, as well as in the Monterey peninsula. Ritschel has wandered all over the world seeking material for his sea paintings, and has gathered and interpreted a magic sea lore richly represented in the present collection.

During his roaming the artist visited many ports and had many colorful adventures. On one trip to the South Seas his crew to a man became ill with influenza, and Ritschel was compelled to become master mariner, doctor, and crew as well as painter. Some of his pictures are of Tahitian types, embodying the sensuous grace of the tropics. His famous marine paintings show the sea in calm with the sheen of sunlight on its surface, in stormy mood, menacing the lonely ships; they show rockbound coasts accented with twisted cyresses. One of his most celebrated works is the magnificent canvas "It is I; Be Not Afraid"; in which the luminous figure of Christ appears upon the waters, and the Disciples in their boat gaze upon him with awe.

William Ritschel was born in Nuremberg, Bavaria, Germany, in 1864. He studied at the Royal Academy at Munich under Professors F. Kaulback and C. Raupp. Arriving in America in 1895, he became a citizen of the United States in 1900. After the slaying-and-starving period which falls to the lot of so many artists, he became an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1912 and was elected a full member in 1914. He is also a member of the American Water Color Society and other professional organizations.

The artist is fortunate in his artistic heritage. He is a descendant of Ernest Ritschel (1801-1861), German sculptor and the founder of the Dresden School, whose first work of importance was a sculpture of King Frederick Augustus I. He also worked on twelve great reliefs, "The Principal Epochs of Civilization," in the Aula of Leipzig University.

problem in theology, but its scientific explanation is, that suffering for the first time in a tournament put up an unusually fine game. Truth destroys, and that eventually both sin and suffering will fall at the feet of everlasting Love" (p. 23).

The Devil Walks

By Herbert Cerwin

Metatarsal arch trouble combined with Athlete's foot has prevented the Devil from taking its weekly walk. Many readers, we are informed, had hoped that Gus had walked him out of town.

Mable Dodge Luhan, who has entertained many famous celebrities, was all set two weeks ago, to have Walter Lippman as a guest at her summer home on The Point.

Lippman was in San Francisco on a lecture tour so Mrs. Luhan wired, inviting him to spend the week-end in Carmel. Lippman, somehow or other, didn't answer the wire and so Mrs. Luhan accompanied by Mrs. Robinson Jeffers rushed up to San Francisco to see him.

But our old friend Fate decreed otherwise. Ten minutes after Mrs. Luhan left her home, a telegram arrived from Lippman informing her that he was accepting the invitation and was coming down on the train at once. The telegram remained unopened and somewhere between here and San Francisco the two must have crossed each other's path.

Lippman landed in Monterey and telephoned the Luhan residence. No answer. He tried several times later, but obtained no response. Then he called his friend Lincoln Steffens, but the latter was also out of town.

Disgusted Lippman signed for a room in a Monterey hotel, went to bed early and left next morning.

The book trade might be poor, but Jeffers poetry in first editions is netting collectors a tidy sum these days. A first edition of "Roan Stallion" went recently in San Francisco for $50.

Jeffers' earlier book and now entirely rare, "Flacons and Apples," is reported to have sold in one instance for $250. Back in 1914, Jeffers couldn't give it away.

The mail bag has two letters—one from Anne Cameron and another from Arthur Brisbane. Miss Cameron is back at her home in Riverside following a trip through South America, in which she obtained material for a series of stories to be published in The Post. By the way, she has a story in this week's issue. She will be back in Carmel this summer.

Brisbane stops in his travels long enough to drop us a line, commenting on the fact that "The Pine Cone is one of the most refreshing and unique newspapers I have had the privilege to read." Great time saver this man. He signs his name "A Brisbane."

Captain John O'Dell, next in line to become Admiral at Mare Island, drives from the eastbay every week-end to spend a few hours in his home on the Point. But why not? He's fixing up his cottage where he plans to live when he retires two years hence.

Robert Welles Ritchie was in London when one night he got a telephone call.

"Hello, Bob? This is Red. Come up to the room and have a drink. I want to show the silver platter the Swedes gave me."

The speaker was Sinclair Lewis. The platter—the Nobel prize!

Christian Science Churches

"Doctrine of Atonement" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, April 16, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Other Bible citations will include: "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebr. 9:28).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The atonement is a hard

Beer Question To Be Decided By Special Election May 15

Will Carmel become dripping wet, moderately wet, or remain dry?

Carmel residents will have an opportunity to decide whether they can quench their thirst in the village at a special election definitely scheduled to be held on May 15.

Decision to hold the election followed two hours of argument Wednesday night not only on the part of members of the council but among the crowd that filled the council chambers to capacity.

Frederick Bechdolt, old timer and well known Carmel author, started the fireworks when he accused the council of attempting to pass the issue to the voters.

"This is a matter that can be settled right now," Bechdolt said, "it's time that we forget our petty convictions and legalize a beverage which Congress has approved. We all know what a failure prohibition was; we don't want a continuation of prohibition in Carmel."

William Silva, Carmel artist, speaking on behalf of the dry cause, pointed out to the council that long before prohibition came, the village had always been dry.

"We have never followed the actions of other cities," Silva said, "and I for one would like to see the town remain dry. Those that want liquor can get it in Monterey. Let Carmel alone."

Mrs. Delos Curtis told the council that in all the 20 years she had been a resident here, Carmel had never been dry, but dripping wet.

City Attorney Argyll Campbell then presented an ordinance carrying three propositions to be placed before the voters. Proposition No. 1 provides for the sale of beer in Carmel. Proposition No. 2 provides for the sale of beer in drug stores and grocery stores, and it while Heron voted with Catlin, Proposition No. 3 calls for a vote as to whether beer should be sold in restaurants or hotels. All propositions would give the council authority to restrict and regulate sales.

Mayor John Catlin objected to the two additional propositions. He explained that Carmel should vote either wet or dry and then allow the council to decide where it should be sold.

Changing places with Councilman John B. Jordan, Mayor Catlin introduced his suggestion in the form of a resolution. Jordan, Kellogg and Norton voted against Councilman Norton then introduced a resolution incorporating all three propositions. All members of the council, including Mayor Catlin finally, voted for it.

Tony Luhan, Pueblo Indian, Gives Concert

Enthusiasm is running high over the program of Indian tribal songs with drum which Tony Luhan is giving tomorrow evening in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. Tony Luhan's recognizable figure is well-known to the community by his twisted Indian braids and strong, impassive features, caught so skillfully by Edward Weston in the now famous portrait of him.

Mrs. Robinson Jeffers will introduce the Indian singer, and his songs. The Jeffers family, poet and wife and sons spent some time in Taos with the Luhans, and Una Jeffers steeped herself in the spirit and feeling of the songs.

Beach Shirts and Slacks Featured at Stella's

Stella's Dry Goods store is featuring "Double duty" slacks and beach shirt outfits as a special attraction this week.

This is the season to sally forth in gay serviceable sport togs. Wear a birch shirt, they are really raglan sweaters, made in all popular colors and in good-looking, long-wearing knit, for only a dollar.

Then add a pair of slacks, also in your favorite color, made in linene, pique or corduroy. Prices are one dollar, $1.50, and $2.95, respectively. Or substitute a pair of shorts for the slacks.

week, in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. Mertianna Towler, the excellent accompanist, comes down weekly from Berkeley to rehearse with Mrs. Wright the most interesting program, which includes a sonata by Handel, a brilliant work by Grieg, the Tallahassee Suite by Cyril Scott, and short works by Bach-Kreisler, Goldmark, Borissoff, and Sinigaglia.

Mildred Wright has won a host of friends for herself by the assistance she is giving the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra, by coming in as concert-master, and giving so generously of her musicianship and time and interest to lead the "first string section."

New Officers Named By Carmel Fire Department

Keith Evans was elected chairman of the Carmel fire department association at the annual election held recently. Other new officers named include: Charles Guth, vice-chairman; Jack Black, secretary, and Ed. Kaiser, treasurer. ## IN THE HEART OF THINGS

The Carmel Pine Cone has moved its offices to the Pine Cone Building on Dolores street, opposite the postoffice. This brings the paper back to the building where, for many years, it operated in the past. The office is not the same, but is two doors south of the old location.

The move to a more central situation is in the interest of both the Pine Cone and the public. The community newspaper must be easy of access to its customers and friends. They should not be made to walk an unnecessary step in bringing us their news items, their advertisements, their subscriptions, or stopping the paper when peeved. And we have much bigger quarters.

Ivy Van Cott, our pulchritudinous society editor and bookkeeper, now will have a throne near the front windows where she may be seen and may see. Looking out on Dolores street from opposite the postoffice is in itself inspirational. The Pine Cone will benefit.

Herbert Cerwin, reporter and columnist, at a desk that faces the door, will gather freakish stories with added facility from the passing throngs. Fred Buck, manager of the advertising department, will have room to swing his elbows into double-page trucks, at the same time giving full attention to the one-column-one-inch adlet, for which our thanks.

Our want-ad department should supplement the postoffice bulletin board across the street. It will be easy when pinning that lost notice on the board to remember that the Pine Cone classified ads bring results. Only a step or two across the street, the smiling Pine Cone-ist will take your ad, and give you a neat receipt.

Our musical critic, Hal Garrott, will have every opportunity to hear delightful music through the thin wall that is all that separates us from music's birthplace in Carmel. Winsor Josselyn, sports editor and humorist, will free-lance all over the place.

Carmel Pine Cone

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA

Established February 3, 1915

Official Newspaper of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California

PERRY NEWBERRY and RANALD COCKBURN, Publishers
The Carmel Pine Cone's circulation covers Carmel, and in addition, circulates widely in the Highlands, Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley and a large portion of the Peninsula. Its policy is to print the true news and promote the welfare of Carmel and the Peninsula section.

BETROTHED TO LOVELINESS

The arms of night
Are tender while she hovers
At each day's end,
Enfolding eager lovers.

Where did she learn
This certain power to bless?
Night must have been
Betrothed to loveliness.

Elinor Lennen

REVEILLE

O, Earth, awake! your dim hushed sleep is over,
The crooning lullaby of rain is done;
The birch in misted green is poised for dancing,
Her cool white limbs are swaying in the sun.

Sound forth, sound forth spring's silver trumpet clearly!
Let all in liege to Loveliness give ear;
O, prodigal with gifts of untold rapture,
Who would not hold this radiant Tyrant dear?

Olga Marie Flohr

CAUSTOGRAPHIC

The vellum of my heart I gave
For you to write upon,
Thinking that you would lightly touch—
The marks would soon be gone.

How could I know that scars could be
So easy to acquire?
How could I know you would not write
Thereon with ink, but fire?

Lydia B. Littell

The editors and publishers will have a lovely sanctum-sanctorum, as it is called in the fourth estate, on the glassed-in back porch. Here in the deeper privacy, the heavier thinking of the Pine Cone may be done without jarring the foundations. An immediate uplift in the quality of editorials and reading matter should be noticed.

We are all glad to be back on Dolores street, which we have sometimes thought of as Carmel's Main street. And now we don't care a darn if the postoffice never moves to a new location!

WILD FLOWERS AND THE LAW

Wild flowers up the valley, great fields carpeted with orange poppies, blazing color in a haze of sunshine, Carmel's background is a joy to motorists these spring days. Gardening efforts, with aching back and mounting water bills, seem puny beside the harvest of bloom that nature gives so prodigally. Sometimes there are scores of acres so densely blossoming that to step inside would mean tramping flowers underfoot.

Yet if you plucked from beside the highway a handful of wild poppies, or without written permission of the owner of the field, thrust an arm through the fencing, and gathered a single blossom of buttercup or other wildflower, you were a criminal. At least the legislature has passed such a law, whether yet signed by the governor or not. And supposedly in the interest of wild flower protection.

There was already a law on the state's statute books to protect the toyon berry and other flowering shrubs from despoliation. That was fair enough, but this amendment prohibiting the picking of any wild flower on state highway land, or public places, or without written consent, on privately owned property, goes too far. It should not and cannot be enforced, and becomes one of those pernicious statutes that cast disrespect upon all law.

People Talked About

The announcement of the twentieth annual Mountain Play to be given in the natural amphitheatre on Mount Tamalpais on Sunday afternoon, May 21, "The Daughter of Jorio," by Gabriele D'Annunzio, recalls the big part our mayor, John C. Catlin, had in starting that open-air playhouse on a mountain side.

Catlin was an attorney in San Francisco at the time—it was in 1912 when he first got the idea of the Mountain Theatre—and he had seen a play of two at our Forest Theater and been much impressed. He and I were warm friends, and he had come to know Garnett Holme well. Also Catlin was a great hiker, and an officer of the Sierra Club that tramped mountains as a pastime.

We were at luncheon in the old Gianduja restaurant on North Beach, Holme, Catlin and I, when John sprung the notion of founding a theatre on Tamalpais. He had found an ideal location for it, and was enthusiastic over the opportunity to do for San Francisco what Carmel was doing for its very limited population on the Monterey peninsula. He suggested that we climb the mountainside that afternoon, spend the night at West Point, and look over his theatre site next morning.

I didn't get excited over the idea, but I agreed to take the trip with them, and got myself ready for the hike. At the last minute, Garnett Holme, wiser than I, decided to take the train, and made the excuse of an important meeting he must attend to dodge the climb. I crossed the bay to Sausalito with Catlin, and we started off, following the pipe line up the hill.

What a climb! John made it easy for me—he says. He could have done the trip in half the time it took us, had he been alone. I only know that he nearly walked the legs off me, and I pulled into West Point nearly dead. After a supper that I was almost too exhausted to eat, I rolled into my bunk, stretched my tired legs to ease the cramps, and got to sleep.

But the view from the inn at morning was worth all the pain and ache of climbing. Over the bay and San Francisco lay a sea of fog, and we, in the sunshine above it, looked down on the waves of its rolling. As it gradually blew away, the buildings of the city and on the islands in the bay came out as toy structures on a miniature setting far below.

After breakfast, I managed another half mile or so over a trail to the place Catlin had chosen for his theatre site. It warranted all his praise, an ideal location. Holme at once became an advocate of the plan, and except for my intense loyalty to the Carmel playhouse in the pines, I would have fallen for it. Catlin and Holme began that day on the campaign that resulted in formation of a Mountain Players organization, in the gift to the club of the land by William Kent, and the start of twenty years of plays given in May on the mountain side.

Charles Parker, one of the best known hotelmen on the Pacific coast, left Carmel this week after being connected with Pine Inn for more than eight years.

Parker has purchased an interest in the St. George hotel in Santa Cruz where he plans to remain in the future. During his stay in Carmel, Parker made hundreds of friends not only among guests at Pine Inn but among residents in the village.

On the day of his departure from Carmel, he found on the bureau of his room an elaborate gift, presented to him by the guests in appreciation of his friendship.

"Some of my happiest years have been spent here and I will always treasure Carmel as one of the finest communities in the world," Parker said. "I made the countless friendships with men like John Jordan—friendships that I will never forget."

Once again, a Carmel man was responsible for disclosing information that the world had forgotten.

Out of old newspaper clippings that he has had in his possession since he was a youngster, Winsor Josselyn, brought out the facts that the first Akron dirigible was destroyed 21 years ago only 50 miles from the present Akron disaster.

According to Josselyn's clippings the 1912 Akron named after the city where it was built by Goodyear Rubber company, was 258 feet long, 47 feet in diameter and carried in its non-rigid bag 350,000 cubic feet of hydrogen. There were three motors on the ship.

Designed for a flight to Europe, it exploded on a trial flight 500 feet above Atlantic City on the early morning of July 2, 1912, hurling its inventor Melvin Vaniman and four companions to death in the Ocean.

Oddly enough, the clippings reveal, the first Akron used variable-direction propellers, as did the present Akron, a practice rare in history of dirigible ballooning.

Josselyn believes that because of the old superstition of the sea that banned the transfer of a name from a ship that met disaster to a new one, no one cared to divulge the information about the first Akron. Josselyn's disclosure of the first Akron was carried to newspapers all over the world by the United Press following its publication in the Oakland Tribune.

Elizabeth Houghton, the Pine Cone's youngest columnist before she took her family abroad, sends us a letter from Rome with some interesting notes on their journeyings under the title, "Seeing the World Without Joining the Navy." She says, "You'll be glad to know that we're in a very comfortable hotel in Rome, and I have just finished cracking a lot of nuts on the radiator. You should see us wandering around town. Hardly anyone speaks English, and as we don't understand Italian, everybody's happy. We bought a little dictionary this morning, and whenever we want to find ourselves—and we're lost most of the time—we pull out the book and point to words."

"Do the people stare here, or do they stare? For one thing, they don't like the idea of my wearing white sport shoes at this time of year, and for another, they don't like the idea of my wearing sport socks over my stockings. It's hard to please my public in Rome!"

THE VILLAGE NEWS-REEL

Mr. and Mrs. Harvy Murry formerly of Honolulu have taken a cottage here and plan to remain about six months.

Carmelites will be pleased to hear of the progress that Blackie O'Neill is making in dramatics in Pasadena. Still a new member in the dramatic field of the South, Blackie has been given a small part in "Hamlet" and a second lead in one of the work-shop plays.

Mrs. J. H. Schaffner and daughter are here for a period of two months as the guests of Mrs.

Schaffner's mother, Mrs. Grace Boke.

Mrs. David Prince and daughter are in Carmel again after being away for the last few months.

Judge Dudley Kinsell is stopping at the Canterbury Hotel in San Francisco this week.

Mrs. R. Baldwin of Pasadena and Mrs. E. B. Baldwin of Berkeley are guests of Mrs. G. W. Reamer of Carmel Point. Miss Betty Baker of the University of California is also at the Reamer home.

Mr. Alfred Wheldon returned this week from a visit to Pasadena and San Bernardino.

Wallace Goodnow, son of Mrs. R. J. Goodnow of north Carmelo street spent the week end in Los Angeles. He also drove up to San Francisco this week and brought back a friend, Mr. Ted Pantan.

Mrs. John Walter Mercer of Carmel and New York City entertained recently with a dinner at Pine Inn and then a dancing party in the Bali Room at Hotel Del Monte. Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Seidenack, Mr. and Mrs. John Abernethy, Dr. and Mrs. Dean Seabrook, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. McCarthy, Mrs. Stella Stafford Mather, Mrs. Katherine Taylor, Miss Glenna Peck, Mr. Barnet Segal, Mr. Herbert Heron, Mr. B. V. McMenamin and Mr. Gail Chandler.

There will be a Better Times dinner dance at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club on Tuesday evening, April 18. Signaling the return of Prosperity the dance is calculated to be extremely gay and to be attended by a large group of Peninsula folk. Music will be furnished for the event by Ed. Fitzpatrick, Jr., and his Hotel Del Monte orchestra who has prepared a number of entertaining features for the evening.

Among the week-end guests at Hotel La Ribera were Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Treat, Miss E. D. Reid, Mr. C. W. Hayden, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Milton, Oakland; Mr. Otto Wagner, Mill Valley; Mrs. R. D. Frisselle and daughter, Berkeley; Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, Palo Alto; Mrs. Geo. C. Cox, Elizabeth, N.J.; Mrs. V. V. Woodward, Garden City, N. Y.; Miss Laura Ranis, Mrs. G. Dawson, Reno, Nevada; Miss J. M. Braden, Glendale.

A party of seven from the staff of the San Francisco Chronicle were in Carmel recently, guests at Hotel La Ribera. Motoring to points of interest on the Peninsula, bathing and visits to some of the Peninsula's favorite eating places, were features of the outing. In the party, which was arranged by Miss Mozelle Milliken, advertising manager of the Hotels Whitcomb and William Taylor in San Francisco, were Mrs. El Leonard who is known to many as "Ninon" fashion writer; Miss M. V. McDonald, whose pen name is "Diana," and Mrs. Dorothy Fannan, Miss Marjorie D. Brown, Miss Z. Estcourt and the Misses Hazel and Jackie Mansfield.

Mr. A. W. Dishman who has recently graduated from West Point and is at present stationed at Cheyenne, Wyoming, is spending several days at Hotel La Ribera visiting his brother, Mr. S. R. Dishman local manager for the Shell Oil Co.

Elmer Zanetta, prominent Monterey merchant and Mrs. Neva Smythe were married this week at the home of Franklin Murphy in Carmel. The couple were married by Judge Ray Baugh.

After visiting Mrs. Nettie Vergon for a few days, Mr. Fred King returned to his home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Walter Brune and her son spent a couple of days visiting Mrs. Brune's mother Mrs. Bertha Hopkins.

Miss Louise Parkes of San Francisco spent a few days with Mrs. Beth Sullivan of Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Joyce and their daughters Misses Barbara and Betty Joyce of Oakland spent a week-end in Carmel over the Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Benedict and Mr. Charlie Benedict are at their home in Carmel for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Englander were in Carmel several days on holiday from San Francisco.

Mrs. F. Thompson, sister of Mort Henderson, spent several days here from San Francisco.

Mrs. Katharine Dallam of San Francisco is a visitor here at her home on Scenic Drive for Easter week.

Mrs. John W. Mercer is back in town from a two weeks' trip in Trinity county where she was visiting friends. She has resumed residence at Pine Inn.

Miss Ruth Neeley of San Mateo is spending a few days in Carmel prior to her returning home.

Mrs. M. C. Chapin of Carmelo street had as her guests recently Mr. and Mrs. William C. Needham and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brafleur of San Francisco.

Mrs. A. C. Hughes entertained at a bridge luncheon at her Country Club home Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Hughes' guests included: Mrs. William Lee, Mrs. Frank Porter, Mrs. Stella Stafford Mather, Mrs. Arthur Metz, Mrs. Samuel Moore, Mrs. John Mercer and Mrs. John Abernethy.

The Tuesday Bridge club met last Tuesday at the Old Cabin Inn for a 1 o'clock bridge and luncheon party. The members present were Mrs. Frank Thompson, Mrs. C. D. Rand, Mrs. William Lee, Mrs. Clarence Terry, Mrs. Willard Whitney, Mrs. Jack Schrader, Mrs. Marshall Crandell and Mrs. John Abernethy.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ball drove down during the week-end for a short stay at Palm Springs. They expected to be back at their home in Hatton Fields sometime this week.

Mrs. Alice E. Totter of San Jose is visiting this week at the home of H. E. Farley in Carmel.

Mr. Belnap Bates was a week-end guest in Carmel last week.

Miss Rosaline Ray and Mr. Charles Sutherland of Berkeley spent a few days in Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. John O. Dresser of San Francisco and their daughters Misses Betty and Jean are visitors for the week. Miss Buddy Henley is also a visitor. Misses Betty Dresser and Buddy Henley attend Miss Burke's School.

Miss Harriet Luthwaite of Miss Burke's School is a guest at Del Monte Lodge.

Among the guests at Peter Pan Lodge in the Carmel Highlands are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Heyes of San Francisco, Mrs. James Parker Hall of Chicago, Mrs. J. W. Mitchell of Palo Alto, Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Dukes of Los Angeles, Mr. Samuel Bowen of Philadelphia and Dr. F. Vowinckle of San Francisco.

Newberry's Authentic Autobiography

Another coincidence of war times, hitching up stagecraft with militarism, came out of the pageant, "Junipero Serra," given at the Forest Theater in 1915. Three years later, a day in early September, I came into the bivouac of the 304th Field Artillery, in the Bois de Munier, on the Vesle front, and handed the regimental adjutant my orders to join the outfit as Y-secretary. Col. Mac Cleave, commanding the regiment, sized me up and then demanded, "Who in hell asked for you?"

The question fairly stumped me. I stammered something about having been sent from Paris by Y headquarters, and supposed I was requested by the command, for I knew that secretaries could not be assigned to field troops unless by such request. Col. Mac Cleave stated flatly that he had not asked for me, didn't want a Y-secretary, had no way to take care of one or transport one, and I might return to Paris pronto, so far as he was concerned.

Then I pleaded with him. I said that I had come from California for the express purpose of seeing some of this war, and had hiked three days and most of three nights to get up to the front, and would hike like any of his gunners if he'd let me stay. "From what part of California are you?" he asked.

"Carmel-by-the-Sea."

"From Carmel, eh? Was you there in 1915 when they gave a pageant at the Forest Theater?"

"Was I? Colonel, I'm the guy that put on that pageant."

"And part of my troop of cavalry was in it," said the Colonel, getting interested. "So you're Newberry, who did that show, eh? Well, well! We'll have to make a place for you somehow, Newberry. I remember the dress rehearsal of that pageant, and the way you would hollar out orders from up back in the auditorium, in the dark. I wondered if any of those orders would be obeyed, and checked up at the show next night to see if they had. Not a one missed. That's wartime obedience."

He called up the officer commanding supply company, put me in his charge, and told him to give me the transport and service I'd need for my job. Coincidence had saved my chance to become a part of the World War.

From the day in August, 1914, that Germany violated the neutrality of Belgium, tearing up "a scrap of paper," I was for America's entrance in the war. "Peace at any price" was a hateful policy to me, and the German system of ruthless warfare, poison gas and submarines, made me more determined to have a personal part in it. The day after America's declaration of a state of war existing, I was in San Francisco, endeavoring to enlist.

Because I was two years over the limit of age, and could not sufficiently disguise the fact, I was unacceptable as a recruit in the army, which was distinctly a young man's affair. I began a campaign to place myself with one of the welfare organizations that would serve with the troops at the front, and taking a page from my advertising experiences, I issued a booklet about myself, and sent a copy of it to each of the service organizations. For once, the various trades and professions which had occupied my spotted career, became of distinct value as an asset.

(To be continued next week)

Don Ettlinger and Walter Obano of Stanford spent the week in Carmel.

Seeing the World Without Joining the Navy

by Elizabeth Houghton

They certainly had the "gimmies" out in the orient. Why some of the natives could make a Broadway gold digger look like a little Salvation Army girl. They would all but come and pull the money out of your pockets. But I fooled them. I didn't have any money.

We've been drinking milk from contented cans for so long that we wouldn't know what fresh milk tastes like, if we ever did get any. We usually start a riot if we ask for cream besides disorganizing the waiter's whole day while he tries to figure out what we asked for.

Aden, Arabia, gave me the charming impression of being the jumping off spot of the world, full of moth eaten camels and Arabs dressed in Gandhi sheets. It hardly ever rains there and certainly looks it... nothing but just barren land without a speck of vegetation on it. One sarcastic Englishman said, "Doesn't that look just like California?" That made me furious. I had such a hard time sticking up for the "Land of Sunshine" the whole trip, anyway.

A play was put on in Carmel some time ago called, "See Naples and Die." I don't know what you're supposed to die of, but I nearly died laughing the other day when someone told me that the store was to open at 14:00 o'clock. The people certainly must be nerfs over here. Instead of stopping at 12:00 they go right on, so after much figuring I finally came to the conclusion that the stores would be open at 2:00 o'clock. I'm afraid if we stay here much longer the mathematical strain will be too much for me.

There was a young Japanese on board the last boat we were on who couldn't understand English very well. Not that that is anything unusual. As the conversation touched on sea sickness he was asked, if he was a poor sailor. He very solemnly answered, "No, I'm a first class passenger." No one was going to put anything over on him.

The English around the eastern part of the world seem to be a little queer or perhaps it's just me. When I was asked by a Britisher if I'd like to have "tiffin" with him at the Army and Navy club in Manila, I didn't know what he was talking about, but accepted. Finally I discovered it was lunch he was taking me to. What I want to know is, why didn't he say so instead of beating around the bush.

Upon entering a barber shop in Shanghai, China, I saw a huge sign suspended over the door with the words, "English spoken here, American understood." in gold letters. That nearly slayed me, and I'm not so sure they could do either very well, as we ended up using the sign language.

Town and Country Shop Back on Dolores Street

Featuring a new stock of Ladies ready to wear, the Town and Country shop opened this week and is again ready to serve the people of Carmel with all the up to the minute spring clothing.

For the past seven years the Town and Country shop under the direction of Anne James has served the Peninsula and now is again open in the same location on Dolores street next to the postoffice.

Along with Mrs. James, G. W. McFarland, formerly of Pasadena and Los Angeles will aid in the management. Mr. McFarland has had wide experience in the clothing line having held executive positions, advertising window display, and buying departments.

A Carmel girl was in the race for election as student officer at Mills college. Miss Marian Vidorini was nominated as secretary of the student body along with a long list of other candidates.
